The 'unfilmable' makes the leap to Hollywood

Piece of the Pi. Saskatoon-based Yann Martel is among a growing number of authors seeing their complex work come to life on the big screen

Author Yann Martel GETTY IMAGES

It would appear that labelling a book unfilmable is a sure-fire way to get a filmmaker's attention.

How else to explain the multitude of book-inspired features currently at the multiplex, a good number of them drawn from challenging literary works chock full of the very things popular cinema generally tries to avoid?

This week, Yann Martel's long-considered-unfilmable tale Life of Pi appears in theatres as a 3D spectacle, the painstaking work of Oscar-winning director Ang Lee.

It follows the ambitious adaptations of David Mitchell's literary puzzle Cloud Atlas and Salman Rushdie's magical, historical tale Midnight's Children.

And next month, theatres welcome a big-screen take on J.R.R. Tolkien's fantasy-laden The Hobbit while January will see Jack Kerouac's meandering Beat generation novel On the Road.

As film critic and curator Jesse Wente notes: "A book is only unfilmable until someone makes a movie of it."

An explosion of digital movie-making tools has allowed for even more "unfilmable" books — as well as comic books — to hit the big screen, he adds.

"All sorts of what we now are calling populist cinema wasn't possible 20 years ago, or at least wasn't possible in the same way and with the same sort of vision," says Wente.

The computer-generated imagery on display in Life of Pi certainly didn't exist when the book came out in 2001.

It's a big reason its Saskatoon-based author says he had a hard time imagining how a film could be made from his Booker Prize-winning tale, about an Indian boy stranded on a lifeboat with a tiger in the middle of the Pacific.

Plus, so much of the story unfolds through reflection, with the hero Pi struggling with deep philosophical and spiritual questions — hardly the stuff of box-office smashes.

"Those are easy words to write on the page. But how would one bring them to life on the screen?" Martel writes in the forward to the behind-the-scenes book, The Making of Life of Pi.

"The challenge seemed forbidding. Who would be crazy enough to try?"

Fate of 3 firefighters in hands of provincial judge

Under fire. Closing arguments delivered Wednesday morning in clash of public servants, which accused claim was a play-fight

MORGAN MODJESKI
morgan.modjeski@metronews.ca

The fate of three firefighters accused of assaulting and obstructing members of the Saskatoon Police Service is now in the hands of a provincial judge.

The prosecutor and defence lawyers gave their closing arguments in court Wednesday morning and Leslie Sullivan, defence for one of the accused, said she feels there are some inconsistencies with evidence submitted by the Crown.

"The position that I took was that the police witnesses — there were some serious issues with their evidence, resulting in serious issues of their credibility," said Sullivan, who highlighted inconsistencies between a police report and testimony given in court during her closing argument.

Keith Walliser, Jeffrey Tysdal and Clifford Hamilton were charged after police tried to intervene in what the accused say was a play-fight between two of the men. Const. Dylan Lisson testified in court he had seen Walliser choking Hamilton, but it was never filed in his report.

Prosecuting lawyer Tom Macnab said it's now up to the judge.

"My duty is to present credible evidence to the court and in that sense the crown witnesses are put on there to give their testimony, and I expect they're going to do that in a credible fashion," he said.

Macnab also said he felt convincing the judge that the three men were guilty was a challenge.

"I certainly got the impression that I had some persuading to do of Judge Singer, and I think he was careful to note that he had to consider all of the evidence before he made up his mind," said Macnab.

Sentencing for the three men is expected on Nov. 28.

Improvements needed

Inmate violence up at Regional Psychiatric Centre

There has been an increase in the number of patients attacking each other and harming themselves at the federal Regional Psychiatric Centre in Saskatoon.

The CBC is reporting that there were 42 incidents of inmates assaulting other inmates at the prison last year, compared to 12 in 2001.

The number of self-inflicted injuries rose to 323 last year from 15 in 2001.

The statistics were provided by the Correctional Service of Canada.

In 2009, the centre put more guards on its units.

Surprising number

30 per cent of Saskatoon-area kindergarten kids not ready for school: Report

A report says 30 per cent of kindergarten children in the Saskatoon area are not ready to learn at school.

The report says they are behind in at least one developmental area, including physical health, language and cognition skills.

The report was co-authored by Dr. Cory Neudorf, chief medical officer for the Saskatoon Health Region.

Neudorf says the number may seem shocking.

He adds that kids are more vulnerable if they come from neighbourhoods where their parents have lower income and education, less employment and fewer social supports.

The report says in some neighbourhoods 10 per cent of children were not ready to learn, but in others the number was 57 per cent.

New liquor laws could be a boon for burlesque

Nudity still prohibited. Changes allow establishments to serve alcohol during strip-tease performances

jane.caulfield@metronews.ca

The 2010 movie Burlesque has Christina Aguilera belting out the line, "Show me how you burlesque" — which is exactly what Saskatchewan burlesquers are hoping to do more of.

One of the 77 proposed liquor-law changes, announced Tuesday, allows establishments to serve alcohol during strip-tease performances. Full nudity is still prohibited.

"This could really open up some doors," said Jackie Latendresse, also known as Headmistress Purr of the Saskatoon Rosebud Burlesque club.

"We get asked to perform at local community events … but haven't been able to show our support because they are often licensed."

Latendresse said this is good news for dance troops in the province because burlesque is more than women stripping — it's an artistic performance.

Quoted

"We hold ourselves to a high standard of entertainment and that's what the public already expects."

"We've been around for nearly seven years now … we've developed a dedicated, solid fanbase," she said.

This particular change allows dance troops to perform in new venues, such as casinos, which Latendresse hopes will increase awareness and popularity of the dance form. "As the community grows, we'll be growing with it," she said.

Changes could attract more visitors

Like any other form of dance, burlesque has professional performers who tour across the country.

But according to Headmistress Purr of the Saskatoon Rosebud Burlesque Club, they usually skip Saskatchewan — something she hopes will change with new liquor laws.

"(The change) is really good for developing the Canadian burlesque scene," she said. "Hopefully we will have more visitors come here to perform and lead workshops." METRO

Senate examines off-reserve aboriginal rights

The rights of First Nations people living off reserve was the focus of a meeting held between the Canadian Senate Committee on Human Rights and local First Nation groups Wednesday morning in Saskatoon.

Patrick Brazeau, member of the Committee, said they're travelling across Western Canada collecting this information to try and find out if those who are living off reserve are getting what they're entitled to as First Nations.

"This event is very important because it's one of the first of its kind in Canadian history to actually hear specifically from off-reserve First Nation citizens in terms of their human rights and access to programs and services, and seeing if there are any discrepancies or discrimination that exists," said Brazeau.

"We do know," he continued, "that First Nations people who live off reserve are often discriminated against by their own leaders because of the fact that they chose to move off the reserve."

Quoted

"I do believe that our treaty rights and our inherent rights have been for too long avoided and neglected."

Simon Bird, vice-chief of the Federation of Saskatchewan Indian Nations

However, fourth vice-chief of the Federation of Saskatchewan Indian Nations Simon Bird said he feels the federal government is trying to find ways to pass off their responsibilities to First Nations living off reserve to other levels of government.

"We need to make sure people understand that our treaty right was never properly implemented," said Bird.

The committee was in Winnipeg prior to Saskatoon and will be stopping in Vancouver next.

Budget cuts

Province urged to help refugees with health care

The NDP Opposition wants the Saskatchewan government to help refugees who lost their drug, dental and vision coverage because of federal cuts.

New Democrat Cam Broten says refugees, including a man in Saskatoon with cancer, are falling through the cracks.

The man received chemotherapy, but he couldn't afford medication for the side effects.

The federal government said in the spring that it hoped benefit changes would deter bogus refugee claims and ensure failed asylum seekers didn't take advantage of Canada's free health care.

Saskatchewan Health Minister Dustin Duncan says there's still a lot of confusion over what is being covered.

Duncan told the legislature that the Saskatoon man got cancer care, but he didn't mention anti-nausea medication that the man needed.

At least one other province has stepped in to backfill the federal cuts.

The province said in September that it will help refugees get the health benefits the federal government took away.

Health Minister Theresa Oswald said in a statement that the province doesn't agree with the cuts because it's hurting families and will lead to longer-term and more expensive problems.

It's a Gaza deal ... after 1,500 air strikes and 1,500 rocket attacks

The question. Can two bitter foes, Israel and Hamas, make the ceasefire hold?

Will it last?

That was the question being asked in Israel and Gaza on Wednesday as a ceasefire was forged after an incredible two days of intense shuttle diplomacy.

"I just hope they commit to peace," said Abdel-Nasser al-Tom, from northern Gaza.

Despite the fears, joy broke out like an explosion.

Cheering Gazans emerged from their homes after a week, flooding the streets in wild celebration.

Gunmen fired in the air, and chants of "God is great" echoed from mosque loudspeakers.

Residents hugged and kissed in celebration, while others distributed candy and waved Hamas flags.

Israel and the Hamas militant group agreed to the ceasefire Wednesday after eight days of the fiercest fighting in nearly four years.

They promised to halt air strikes and rocket attacks that have killed scores and to ease an Israeli blockade constricting the Gaza Strip.

The truce will "improve conditions for the people of Gaza and provide security for the people of Israel," U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said in Cairo.

Israel sends Facebook and Twitter into battle

Israel is using social media to pre-empt a publicity pounding over its Gaza offensive.

It's furiously tweeting and posting Facebook updates from a "media bunker."

The instant they heard about a bus bombing that wounded 27 in Tel Aviv on Wednesday, scores of tech-savvy youth in Israel's media command centre in Jerusalem sprang into action.

They began flooding social media with updates and created a graphic exclaiming: "We didn't send in our ground troops, but they sent in theirs!"

Hundreds of volunteers have produced and posted videos and graphics about the twists in the Gaza offensive from Israel's point of view.

Its Facebook site, Israel Under Fire, has gained more than 24,000 "likes" over the last week.

"They used to say the Elders of Zion controlled the media. Well, here are the youngsters of Zion who are running it," said Daniel Seaman, deputy director general at the Ministry of Public Diplomacy.

For its part, Hamas is countering Israel's Internet firepower with only an unverified Twitter account, though legions of pro-Palestinian activists around the world are peppering the Internet with posts and tweets.

Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu rallied the volunteers this week in a video conference, where he reflected the view of Israelis and supporters that the media are anti-Israel and pro-Palestinian.

Budget officer taking on creators of his job over withheld figures

Canada's budget watchdog is taking the Harper government to court over its refusal to turn over information about austerity measures.

Parliamentary budget officer Kevin Page on Wednesday filed a reference application with the Federal Court seeking a judgment affirming he has the jurisdiction to search for the information.

In a covering letter signed by Ottawa constitutional lawyer Joseph Magnet and Tolga Yalkin of the PBO, Page cites the "urgency" of resolving the issue quickly and proposes numerous dates for the hearing from Nov. 29 to Jan. 11.

The budget officer has complained for months that government departments have not been forthcoming with his requests on budget cuts, staff reductions and impacts on services.

In response, the government said Page is overreaching and that his mandate is to examine government spending, not government restraint.

Opposition leaders said Page had no choice but go to court to perform his duty and accused the Conservatives of carrying out a vendetta against the budget officer, a position they created.

Alleged theft of 100,000 toys 'targeted': Sally Ann

Salvation Army. The charitable organization calls organized plot to steal toys over past two years 'troubling'

The Salvation Army believes 100,000 toys were stolen from its Toronto warehouse over the past two years in a "targeted," strategic plot to defraud the charity.

Police have been investigating the alleged theft, estimated to be worth about $2 million, since late September, but have not made any arrests.

The news comes as the Salvation Army is preparing to start its annual Christmas Kettle Campaign, where volunteers solicit donations in high-traffic areas like shopping malls and on the street.

About 140,000 toys are distributed to families in need each holiday season from the Toronto warehouse, but spokesman John Murray said at a news conference Wednesday that no one will go without.

"I can assure you that anyone in need this Christmas will be helped by the Salvation Army," he said.

"To those Canadians who routinely and generously give to the Salvation Army I would appeal to you this afternoon to not lose confidence in the work of the Salvation Army and the work that we do on your behalf in Canadian cities."

A whistleblower within the organization tipped the Salvation Army off a few months ago and internal auditors made the "troubling" discovery, Murray said.

Executive director David Rennie was then fired. No criminal charges have been laid.

Meanwhile, the executive director at the Salvation Army in Ottawa has been fired after auditors discovered $250,000 has gone missing. Perry Rowe had been with the charity's Booth Centre for eight years.

Police have not yet determined what happened to the toys at the Toronto warehouse. Murray said the Salvation Army believes no other locations have been hit with alleged thefts.

"This is an isolated situation," he said. "We believe that it's been very specific. It's been targeted. It's been very strategic in the way that it was put together. It was thought out."

The warehouse has video surveillance and security systems, but the Salvation Army has retained KPMG to do an audit to determine what other checks and balances can be put in place.

The security system is good, so the alleged theft signals that when there is a will, there is a way, Murray said.

"If an individual wants to defraud an organization there are ways and means to do that," he said.

The hearts of people at the Salvation Army go out to whoever committed the alleged theft, but if people have problems in their lives they should instead come to the organization for help, Murray said.

"I also would remind people that when you're stealing from an organization like the Salvation Army," he said, "you're stealing from those people who the Salvation Army helps every day — and in Canada, that's 1.8 million Canadians in 400 Canadian communities."

Driving. Are higher premiums for drivers 80+ fair?

Whether an insurance company can charge more for drivers over the age of 80 is the subject of a two-day human-rights hearing slated to start Thursday in a case that could affect thousands of Ontario seniors.

In his complaint, Denis Olorenshaw argues that setting higher premiums for drivers based on their plus-80 status amounts to age discrimination that can't be justified.

"They don't have the legal basis ... for increasing a premium for an 80-year-old driver," Olorenshaw said in an interview Wednesday. "It's serious business."

Olorenshaw, 92, of Toronto, launched his complaint after he began shopping around for auto insurance in 2009.

Both he and his daughter had identical Toyotas purchased at the same time and lived in the same condominium. However, his daughter, then aged 62, was given a lower quote from the brokerage company Atrens-Counsel on behalf of Western Assurance.

"There was a $250 difference in the premiums," Olorenshaw said. "I didn't buy it."

Tensions rise between feds, First Nations over bill

The federal Conservatives are pushing through more First Nations legislation that does not have the support of chiefs, despite growing tension between Ottawa and native leaders.

Aboriginal Affairs Minister John Duncan said Wednesday his party is forcing a vote to shut down debate on a financial-transparency bill that will require First Nations chiefs and councillors to publish their salaries and expenses.

The move means the bill will pass the House of Commons by the end of this week — over the objections of chiefs as well as the federal NDP and Liberals. Various forms of the bill have been around for three years, stalled by electoral cycles and opposition from the Assembly of First Nations.

"It's unfortunate that we have to take this measure," Duncan told a news conference. "Continued obstruction by the NDP and Liberals has made it clear that this is the only way this important bill will be passed."

Duncan said that while the chiefs' organization may not support the legislation, it is in keeping with resolutions passed by the AFN and is widely favoured by grassroots First Nations.

But it's only one of several pieces of legislation that the Conservatives have pushed aggressively through the Commons over the objections of the AFN, leading to deterioration in the relationship between Conservative and First Nations leaders.

"There has been a ... sense of frustration,'" AFN National Chief Shawn Atleo wrote in a letter to Prime Minister Stephen Harper last month. "This is exacerbated by the federal government's broader legislative agenda."

Holiday shoppers not too keen on apps, survey finds

Retail. Mobile discount-hunting can give buyers an edge, but it's been slow to catch on in Canada

Smartphones can scan barcodes and offer real-time discounts but most Canadians won't bother using apps while shopping this holiday season, a new survey suggests.

About 70 per cent of those surveyed weren't planning to use a mobile application or feature to help buy gifts, according to the results of a poll commissioned by wireless carrier Mobilicity.

Smartphone apps can give users notifications of what discounts are being offered in a mall and at what stores, said Anthony Booth, Mobilicity's chief customer officer.

"The real astute users are the people who have figured out how to take advantage of things in real time by using their smartphone," Booth said from Toronto.

Black Friday, the day after U.S. Thanksgiving, has come to Canada and generally marks the beginning of the holiday shopping season. Apps such as TGI Black Friday and Black Friday Deals and Coupons allows smartphone users to search from thousands of discounts.

Booth said even though Canadians do a lot of online research and price comparison, app adoption is about a year behind the United States. He expects more uptake by Canadians in 2013.

Marta Tryshak, creator of lifestyle and fashion website WithLoveGabrielle.com, has been using her smartphone for four years to find the best prices and said it's a must for Black Friday and other holiday shopping.

The online survey of 1,514 Canadians by Leger Marketing has a margin of error of plus or minus 2.5 percentage points, 19 times out of 20.

Japan. Four-legged robot may help at meltdown site

Toshiba Corp. unveiled a robot Wednesday that the company says can withstand high radiation and help in nuclear disasters.

But it remains unclear what exactly the new machine will be capable of doing if and when it gets the go-ahead to enter Japan's crippled Fukushima Dai-ichi nuclear plant.

The four-legged robot can climb over debris and venture into radiated areas off-limits to human workers. One significant innovation, Toshiba said, is that its wireless network can be controlled in high radiation, automatically seeking better transmission when reception becomes weak.

But the machine, which looks like an ice cooler on wobbly metal legs, also appears prone to glitches. The robot took a jerky misstep during a demonstration to reporters, freezing with one leg up in the air. It had to be lifted by several people and rebooted.

Still, Tokyo Electric Power Co. said it might use the robot to inspect the suppression chamber of the Fukushima plant, where a devastating meltdown took place after a mammoth tsunami slammed into northeastern Japan on March 11, 2011.

NHL COMMISSIONER GETS CANDID

HE SAYS...
John Mazerolle
metronews.ca

What follows is an exclusive, in-good-faith "marathon" interview with Gary Bettman, commissioner of the National Hockey League.

While it's true the commissioner has been talking to other media throughout the NHL lockout, Mr. Bettman told me some exclusive things — things so striking and unexpected that he may deny ever having talked to me, or, indeed, having heard of me.

NHL insiders say that, using the logic of contract negations, his refusal to acknowledge my existence is a sign our talk went well.

He Says: Mr. Bettman, let's drop the gloves. What can the league do to win back fans after this lockout, which everybody outside of the players and owners believes was unnecessary and wrong?

Bettman: Well, we're very fortunate to have great fans in Canada that have nothing else to do in the winter that isn't illegal. As for Americans, they haven't noticed yet that we've been gone. So don't tell them, OK?

He Says: Don't you think this cavalier attitude will only reinforce Canadians' belief that you don't care about the fans, delivering a Raffi Torres-like check to the head to our national game?

Bettman: Well, first of all, I don't know what a Raffi Torres is, but let me say that I'm confident the fans will be back.

He Says: How can you be so sure?

Straight talk

"The players will always be at a disadvantage in contract negotiations, because they're heroes betraying their fans."

NHL commissioner Gary Bettman, in an honest interview with He Says

Bettman: If you read news reports from after the last lockout, you see headlines like: "Hockey: Does anyone still care?" next to headlines like, "Maple Leafs' second-unit penalty kill needs tweaking or heads will roll."

He Says: I see your point. But the NHL game was, before The Lockout: Part 2, at the height of its popularity. The hockey was faster, the women behind the benches were hotter, and mentions in late-night comedy monologues were at an all-time low. How did you kill all that momentum?

Bettman: You have to understand that there's been a huge philosophical divide between each side.

He Says: I noticed that in the various proposals. The players said the repeating lockout was an example of Nietzsche's eternal recurrence, while you adhered to the deconstructionism of Jacques Derrida, refusing to make whole.

Bettman: We spent one meeting talking about whether contract negotiations really mean anything in a cold, uncaring universe. We found a lot of common ground there. But that's not what I meant. What I meant is that we have a different attitude than the players, because we don't care what people think of us.

He Says: That's refreshingly honest.

Bettman: The players will always be at a disadvantage in contract negotiations, because they're heroes betraying their fans. But the management don't have to be heroes. No Canadian kid says, "I want to be an owner." Or commissioner. Keep it under your helmet, but I'm not very popular.

He Says: Your secret's safe with me. I want to thank you for your candour, Mr. Bettman. And remember, keep your stick on the ice.

Bettman: I'm sorry, what?

He Says: Uh, just forget it.

World record

Longest chocolate structure rolls into Brussels

Commuters take pictures of the world's longest chocolate structure as it is displayed at Brussels Midi train station on Wednesday.

The train, which took 784 hours of labour to create, measures 34.05 metres (111 feet) in total length and was prepared with 1,285 kilograms (2,832 pounds) of Belgian chocolate and was built by master chocolatier Andrew Farrugia from Malta.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's as long as...

Let's see what else compares to the 111 feet of chocolatey heaven.

- NBA basketball court. An NBA basketball court is just a smidgen shorter than the train, measuring 94 feet long.
- Baseball diamond. The distance between each base in a baseball diamond is 90 feet.
- The Mayflower. The ship that transported English and Dutch Separatists to Massachusetts was 100 feet long, slightly shorter than the chocolatey train.

Culinary concoctions

It's a sweet time to be a world-record holder. Here's some other culinary concoctions that have set world records recently.

- Cream cake. Chefs in Switzerland took the title for the longest cake ever — a whopping 1,200 metres (3,937 feet) of sugar, flour and cream in November 2012. That's more than a kilometre of cake!
- Chocolate bar. The longest chocolate bar was measured at 15.9 metres (52 feet) long and 2.03 metres (6.7 feet) wide in Bologna, Italy, in 2011.

Calorie counting

6.5M

The model train packs an impressive 6.5 million calories. But the train isn't the largest chocolate structure in the world. That title goes to a California bakery that built a massive Mayan temple out of the dark sweet that weighs three times as much as the train.

The Ghost of Christmas Past, played by Bethany Gaertner, shows Ebenezer Scrooge (Richard Medernach) the error of his ways in A Seussified Christmas Carol. SIMON HIATT/METRO

Director adds some Seuss to a classic Dickens tale

A Seussified Christmas Carol.
Writer takes Victorian prose and turns it into oddball rhyming couplets on stage

When Mike De Jong got set to tackle his first assignment as a director for Newman Players, he didn't want to bite off more than he could chew by taking on the work of one of the world's most beloved writers.

Instead he is bringing the words of two literary giants to life on stage at St. Thomas More College, at the U of S.

A Seussified Christmas Carol combines the seemingly divergent worlds of Charles Dickens' Victorian England and Dr. Seuss' Whoville into one production.

"You have this picture in your head of a dark and drab England, so you've kind of got to balance that out," said De Jong.

"You have to figure out how much on either side you want to go."

The play, written by Peter Bloedel a Minnesota-based writer, tells the familiar tale of Ebenezer Scrooge but with Dr. Seuss-flavoured scripting.

Proper English diction is replaced by oddball rhyming couplets and instead of Tiny Tim, the production features Timmy Loo Hoo. But it's all explained through narration by Thing One and Thing Two from The Cat in the Hat.

"It definitely has its challenges but it's hilarious, it has great characters and it's a pleasure to do," said Kendal McInnes, who plays multiple roles.

The Newman Players is a bit of a mash-up itself; consisting of students, staff, faculty and alumni from the college, located on the campus of the University of Saskatchewan.

Company veteran Richard Medernach plays the main role and says preparing for the production has been one of his most enjoyable theatre experiences.

"Playing Scrooge in a Seuss environment is awesome. You get to have so much more fun when you're not constrained by historical settings and Dickens' language," said Medernach. "While the original is great, this just provides an opportunity to be a little more zany."

Medernach believes the approach to the classic will also make it more accessible to audiences of all ages, who he hopes will also get into the act.

"We fully expect people in the audience to be shouting things out at us. A Christmas Carol is such a well known story and it's been done in a variety of settings and this one's just tons of fun for everyone."

A Seussified Christmas Carol plays at 2 p.m. December 1st & 2nd and 7 p.m. December 3rd and 4th in Fr. O'Donnell Auditorium in St. Thomas More College.

An enduring tale

A Seussical Christmas Carol isn't the only unique take on the Dickens classic. It has been transformed into a ballet, an opera, a Broadway musical and even a BBC mime production. Scrooge has been portrayed on film by actors as diverse as George C. Scott, Bill Murray, Patrick Stewart and Michael Caine. Kermit the Frog played Bob Cratchit in The Muppet Christmas Carol.

Singer Aimee Mann has turned to an AM radio hit for inspiration on her new album. GETTY IMAGES

Mann details the less than charmed life indie musicians live

New album. Aimee Mann reveals unique inspiration behind latest effort and the struggles facing modern artists

The musical inspiration for Aimee Mann's latest disc may come as a surprise. It certainly did for Larry Lee.

Mann's Charmer hearkens back to the pop-rock structures of her 1990s discs Whatever and I'm With Stupid, and ultimately even further, to radio-friendly hits from 30 and 40 years ago. That's her pop music, not the kind made by Taylor Swift, Beyoncé or Katy Perry. In fact, she zeroed in on one song in particular: Jackie Blue, a 1975 hit by the Ozark Mountain Daredevils.

"To me, that's the perfect pop song and was kind of the touchstone for the whole record," said Mann, who's 52. "In fact, there are certain songs (on Charmer) where it's basically a homage to that song."

Charmer, which debuted at No. 33 on Billboard's 200 albums chart in September, is not a concept album, but Mann finds discs that are more than a collection of unrelated songs more satisfying to the artist and listener.

Mann went through record company nightmares early in her career, and now makes music on her own label, SuperEgo. That doesn't make her immune to the industry's problems. She said many fans can't see the connection between illegally downloading music and the struggles of their favourite artists.

"If I don't have enough money to make another album, I can't make another album," she said. "That's how it goes. You can't think about it. Am I suddenly going to appeal to people's consciences and make them not steal music? If you don't like it, great, then I can understand you not buying it. But if you like it and end up stealing it, then I just think you're a jerk. Of all the people to steal from. Musicians? Really?" THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One Direction released its sophomore album, Take Me Home, which comes eight months after the boy band dropped its debut, Up All Night, which debuted at No. 1 and is platinum. CHRIS PIZZELLO/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One Direction headed on upward trajectory

Boy band. Sophmore album, Take Me Home, moves 540,000 units in first week on shelves

One Direction's Take Me Home is the taking the boys to the top of the charts — and to new heights.

The London group's sophomore album has sold 540,000 in its first week, according to Nielsen SoundScan. It's the year's third-highest debut behind Taylor Swift's Red, which sold 1.2 million units its first week earlier this month, and Mumford & Sons' Babel, which sold more than 600,000 albums in September in its debut week.

"We just want to say a massive thanks to all the fans who have supported us," band member Harry Styles, 18, said in an interview Tuesday. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

By the numbers

The album also debuted at No. 1 in the United Kingdom this week.

- Success. The fivesome's debut, Up All Night, came in at No. 2 in the U.K. last year; it was just released in March in America, where it hit platinum status.

Alec sharpens Claus for edgy festive role

Rise of the Guardians. Baldwin voices an alternate Santa covered in tattoos for new animated film

OLIVIA MORROW
Metro World News in New York

Alec Baldwin gives a new voice to Santa Claus. GETTY IMAGE

Alec Baldwin is widely recognized for the huge variety of roles he's played throughout his long, successful career, but you might not have expected him to tackle his latest character in the Dreamworks animated film, Rise of the Guardians.

Baldwin gives voice to an unconventional Santa Claus, with a thick, brutish accent and arms full of tattoos. One of the film's producers, Christina Steinberg, puts it perfectly: "Who's more naughty and nice than Alec?"

Although Baldwin has voiced numerous characters in past films — including Madagascar 2 and Cats & Dogs — you'd expect that children's films wouldn't be of much appeal considering his only daughter is now a teenager.

"I think that people all say that they want to ... do this children's programming for your kids," he says. "My daughter is 17 now, my daughter is watching God-knows-what.

"It's kind of frightening, but I think that when they showed me that these were going to be edgier versions of these characters — when you see the Santa Claus figure it's usually ... a rosy-cheeked, saintly man with not a lot of dimension — (it) was a lot more real, so I loved that."

Baldwin talked about his personal beliefs regarding Santa Claus when he was a child and how he discovered it was all a myth: "I walked into a room and my sister was wrapping presents with my mother and I was like, 'Wait, what?'" he explains.

"I think they only told me because the more kids my mother had, the more wrapping they had to do. I immediately became enlisted as a wrapper."

But just what was it like for Baldwin to play the legendary character?

"The key with these kinds of films is to work your way toward a much warmer kind of humanistic place, literally in your voice. ... The thing for me is to try to vary the tone. ... You want to try to keep it warm, there's a great deal of love and warmth in the piece, (but) there's always a chance to make it really, really bombastic, especially with the Santa Claus character.

"There's a chance to make it very strident. The guy is very, very powerful in some scenes — but in other scenes you want to make it silly and fun and child-friendly."

Quoted

"I walked into a room and my sister was wrapping gifts with my mother and I was like 'Wait, what!'"

Alec Baldwin, actor
On when he started to question the existence of Santa Claus.

What's next?

Quality over quantity. As he prepares to say goodbye to 30 Rock, it seems Baldwin's life is slowing down, as he says his career is all about quality rather than quantity now. "I'd rather just stay home with my wife and my two dogs and watch TV now. I'd rather watch a movie than make a movie any day," he says.

On Turning 50. "I'm at a stage now where it's more like when you were a child where you're very present. When you're kids, everything is very small. ... Then you turn 50 — the world becomes a lot smaller and you'd rather do less things and do them well and have a more satisfying personal life."

Lohan regrets nothing, could be facing more jail time

Lindsay Lohan has no regrets, she insists, despite the legal and family problems that have plagued her and impacted her career.

"I want to be known as an actress, not a troubled starlet," Lohan tells Us Weekly during a lengthy sit-down interview.

"(I regret) nothing, because then I wouldn't have been able to cry in scenes at the drop of a hat. I have a tattoo, Live without regrets. I'm not saying I wanted to go to a jail cell, but I've drawn from it."

Well, she might have even more to draw from soon.

It looks like she'll have her probation revoked for lying to police after a summer fender-bender, according to TMZ, and that could lead to more jail time for Lohan.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

Rihanna finally makes appearance on 777-tour

THE WORD
Katarina Matsson
scene@metronews.ca

Rihanna's 777 Tour has taken its toll on journalists and fans who followed the star around the globe.

After a week, their frustration exploded. Constant delays and lack of sleep (those on board had to crash whenever and wherever they had a chance: on coaches, on board the plane or on a floor) and not knowing when the next opportunity to eat and drink would materialize, are circumstances most would endure with joy — if only the main subject of the whole trip would show herself offstage.

After mounting criticism spread like a wildfire online — that's the risk you take when you invite 150 journalists — Rihanna yesterday showed herself on the plane.

Wearing dark sunglasses, she appeared 10 minutes before the plane was due to land after the last leg. She even came close to offering an apology.

"I didn't get to spend as much time as I'd originally planned with you guys. I think you are tired as well, but I wanna now improve so I'm gonna come and sit here with you guys. And thank you everybody for making this trip the s—t," she told the journalists.

What was the hardest part of the tour?
The hardest part? I guess trying to balance being a hostess and a performer. I'm supposed to do my show and then shut the f—k up until the next show. Because the two hours we have to fly that's when I can sleep, but I really wanted to hang out and interact with everybody and give everybody my time. So I guess that was difficult.

Rihanna, can you sum up the tour for us?
Rock and roll, true friends, press who really want to know the dirt, rarely got any dirt cause I had to be good. I had to be good this time. We would have had a 333 tour if I wasn't good. I wouldn't have lasted. I still sound like s—t right now, but tonight is the last s—t so we are going all the way. No mercy, that's what I mean. I'm gonna put all my energy into this one show.

Justin Bieber

Oprah dishes out dating advice for Justin Bieber

While Justin Bieber may still be making attempts to win back ex-girlfriend Selena Gomez, at least one influential personality thinks he should cool it — and maybe revise his previously stated plans to be married by 25, too.

"I think 25 is too young, actually, I really do — particularly for you," Oprah Winfrey told Bieber during a one-on-one interview with the superstar.

"Your whole 20s is about discovering who you really are. You owe that to yourself, particularly because of the business that you're in (where there's) not a lot of self-discovery time because so much is already defined for you."

In other news, prosecutors decided not to file any charges against Bieber after investigators found no evidence that the pop star had kicked and punched a photographer after leaving a movie theatre last month, a document obtained Wednesday states.

Cameron Diaz wants you to objectify her

Maybe the feminists had it wrong. At least, that's an idea that Cameron Diaz is promoting.

"I think every woman does want to be objectified," she tells the Sunday Times.

"There's a little part of you at all times that hopes to be somewhat objectified, and I think it's healthy. I'm a woman, I know how to handle myself. I know what I feel comfortable doing, and I know my sexuality."

A dress fit for four fêtes

Deck the holidays. No need to break the bank on several new outfits as you navigate the social circuit this season

Whether you're heading to cocktails, the office bash or a family gathering, a few fashionable additions can add some oomph to your festive wardrobe.

"As much as we know that we've got lots of different parties on our calendar for the holidays, we don't always have to necessarily buy four different outfits," said Julia Cyboran, editor-in-chief of Loulou magazine. "It's all about how you style one main piece."

THE STAPLE PIECE

Cyboran said the little black dress is the wardrobe essential for any holiday look. That's likely music to the ears of cost-conscious fashionistas who may already have an LBD tucked away in their closet or are able to scout out a new, affordable option.

The seemingly season-less style staple has a chameleon-like ability to transform from upscale chic to laid back casual.

Selecting the right style with its own intricate details such as pleating, embellished sleeves and a flattering silhouette can ensure it can work as a stand-alone garment, Cyboran noted.

Going for glam

Looking to add a little luxe to your holiday look? Cyboran said teaming your dress with a faux fur topper along with some shimmering sequined booties can instantly infuse a glam touch.

Bling it on

Trying to select several eye-catching add-ons to amp up your party attire?

- Step in style. In the case of those seeking a little lift, Julia Cyboran said the pointy-toed pump that dominated the fashion runways is emerging as a standout on the market.
- In the bag. Cyboran said the solid, structured pillbox clutch will remain a style standout for the holidays, but expect to see envelope clutches in the hands of women heading out on the town.
- Making a statement. Bigger is better when it comes to statement jewelry, with large-scale earrings and necklaces among the holiday accessory offerings. While rose gold hit the market last spring, Cyboran said it started to surface a little last winter in watches, belts and earrings, as did chocolate-coloured gold, and both colours have remained a part of the accessory landscape.

Julia Cyboran, editor-in-chief of Loulou magazine, selected this black-and-gold clutch from BCBG ($190), and Envelope clutch from Forever 21 ($19.80) to highlight the season's key trends. AARON VINCENT ELKAIM/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Comfort casual

Heading to cottage country or settling in at home for a more low-key holiday celebration? Cyboran suggests taking a robust, comfy warm knit worn with a belt over the dress, along with a pair of slouchy, low-cut boots for a more casual ensemble.

Office party chic

If you're pressed for time and need to make a wardrobe quick-change for the office shindig, Cyboran said a blazer with faux leather detailing partnered with a pair of pumps can easily help translate your outfit for after-hours.

Three big holiday decor trends

DESIGN CENTRE
Karl Lohnes
home@metronews.ca

Each year we see new colours being introduced to Christmas decor, as if the ornaments we use every year won't suffice.

Holiday decor usually follows suit with fashion or home decor, and this year it's easier than ever to update your holiday decorations and have a trend-setting home for the holidays.

Consider taking a few good holiday standards and adding a twist in order to make your home trend-worthy this year.

Use old ornaments

Colour block old ornaments into a concentrated area — display in a crystal bowl, use on a staircase garland, string on a garland across a window, decorate a spare room or donate to a local shelter. Do this three to four weeks before the holidays to give them time to enjoy.

Glitter Wreath: Mixing gold and silver is all of a sudden OK for holiday decorating this year. CRATEANDBARREL.COM

Glam with rustic

We've always been told never to mix the precious metals when decorating — mixing silver and gold has always been a faux pas. Silver has topped the list for sometime now. This year, we are taking the warm and cool metal tones and blending them to help create a more humble look. Using them in a rich, formal setting would be too much formality. Using them in a farmhouse or rustic setting helps add understated glam to a space.

Got some outdated trend colours from years past? Group them together and display in a guest room. SUPPLIED

Add a Punch

Wake up the predictable red-gold-green colour combination by adding a shot of cobalt blue or black to the room, it will give the colour scheme a sense of importance with the shot of darkness. A lot of dark brown entered Christmas decor a few years ago, stemming from the trends in home decor furniture. The brown feels a bit predictable, but when mixed with warm gold and a shot of fuchsia or purple, it can take us back to retro-Halston '70s.

Blown glass ornament: Grey ornaments help to create a sophisticated, cool vibe. URBANBARN.COM

Shades of Grey

Various neutral colours come and go in holiday decor — there's been taupe, black, sage and the ever popular cream colours. This year, look to inject a bit of inspiration coming from fashion. Grey is the new neutral and helps to make our homes take on a cool air of sophistication during the holidays. Team it with fresh greens, golds and citron for a punchy holiday decor. I suggest using this colour as an accent so not to over spend. Grey is the hot neutral this year, but most likely will not have longevity.

QUEEN OF GREEN
Tovah Paglaro
green@metronews.ca

Oh Christmas tree, oh Christmas tree, how green is your carbon footprint? The question about the greenest Christmas tree has been one of considerable debate among environmentally conscious merry-makers for the past decade.

Both sides have made valid points: advocates of artificial trees take issue with the practice of cutting down trees in the name of festivity, whereas proponents of real trees argue that it's pretty much impossible for a plastic alternative to be green.

The research team at Ellipsos has provided a definitive answer. In its study, the real tree emerges victorious.

According to Ellipsos, the artificial tree has three times more impact on climate change and resource depletion than the natural tree. That's assuming your artificial tree lasts six years. If your tree will last more than 20 years and if you'd have to drive a long way to buy a real tree, the opposite becomes true.

If you're set on buying a real Christmas tree, consider cutting your own tree from lands that must be clear anyway — a win-win. ISTOCK IMAGES

Regardless of whether you choose real or artificial, there are ways to make sure your evergreen is truly green:

Real Christmas Trees

1. Buy locally.
2. Choose trees from farms that minimize (or do without) pesticides and herbicides.
3. Cut your own with a provincial permit, from lands that must be kept clear anyway. In many provinces, hydro right-of-ways have to be kept clear. This is a win-win way to meet that mandate.

Artificial Christmas Trees

1. Avoid PVCs — the grinchiest of plastics — that most artificial trees are made of. Not only are these hard on the environment, they're bad for your health.
2. Make it last 20 years!

Should neither of these options live up to your desire for a truly sustainable celebration, consider a living Christmas tree. Potted evergreens are just as festive as their cut counterparts! And the recent appearance of rental companies dealing in potted evergreens makes this a hassle-free option even for folks who forgot to dig their tree a hole before the ground froze.

Next Thursday, we'll talk green strategies to decorate that green Christmas tree.

Holidays

Time to get your dishes ready!

Dear Mr. Butler,
With both American Thanksgiving and Christmas on the horizon, what can I do to deal with some of my chipped antique dishes to get ready for the holidays?
-Signed, Holiday Lady

CHARLES THE BUTLER
askcharlesthebutler@metronews.ca
For more, visit charlesmacpherson.com

What an organized woman you are. Good on you for thinking ahead.

First, you need to know how many people you will be entertaining over the holidays. Will you be having sit down meals or simpler cocktail party gatherings?

Once you know what kind of entertaining you will be doing and how many people you'll be hosting, look through your cupboards to see what you have and what you may want to use.

With your inventory in hand, you now need to find some retailers who specialize in selling single pieces of antique china.

Some cities have great antique markets. For the rest of us who either don't have these antique stores handy or can't find the pieces we need, there are some great online solutions.

Determine what kind of entertaining you will be doing this season before stocking up on inventory. ISTOCK IMAGES

I have found three companies that may be able to help you out, and I have used one of them in particular with great success.

The three most popular companies for china replacements are: replacements.com, chinalane.com and patternsearch.ca.

Remember, these are generally expensive. These sites are a great way to replace one or two broken items like a chipped coffee cup or cracked plate.

But if you plan to purchase an entire inventory, this is by far the most expensive route and one that I would not advise.

Here's a tip!

Remember, anything you have not used in the past year should have a quick wash with hot water and dish soap to get rid of any dust before you use it.

Don't be fooled — not all doughnuts are created equal

Lemon doughnuts generally involve fried dough filled with sticky, tart-sweet yellow goo that tastes more of sugar than of serious lemon.

So here is a way to truly reinvent the lemon doughnut as a baked treat that is at once lighter and more deliciously lemony.

All you have to do is start with a golden cake-style baked doughnut, which is then flecked with the potent flavour of real lemon zest. You finish by topping the doughnuts with a simple powdered sugar-lemon juice glaze. The result is wonderful.

1. Heat the oven to 425 F.

2. Coat 2 doughnut pans with baking spray; you can use pans designed for either large or small doughnuts. A mini doughnut pan will bake more quickly.

3. In a medium bowl, use an electric mixer to beat together the butter, oil, packed brown sugar, granulated sugar, baking powder, baking soda, salt, vanilla extract and lemon zest. Beat in the eggs, one at a time, scraping the bowl between additions.

4. Stir in half the flour followed by half the buttermilk, then the remaining flour and finally the remaining buttermilk.

5. Spoon the batter into the prepared pans, filling the doughnut wells to about 1/4 inch from the top. If using a mini doughnut pan, you will need to bake in multiple batches.

6. Bake for 10 to 12 minutes, or until golden and cooked through. Allow to cool in the pan for 10 minutes before turning out onto a rack.

7. To make the glaze, simply stir together the lemon juice and powdered sugar. Dip the tops of the doughnuts in the glaze and allow them to set or enjoy immediately.

Sweet marries salty in Chocolate Caramel Squares

This recipe makes 36 squares. NEWS CANADA

Baking is a great family activity as the weather cools and cookie exchange season nears. It's as simple as booking an hour in your schedule and preparing for the fun. According to the baking experts at Robin Hood, the key to a great family baking activity is choosing a recipe that everyone will enjoy making together. Start with this one for Sweet and Salty Chocolate Caramel Squares.

1. Preheat oven to 350 F (180 C). Line a 9-inch (23 cm) square baking pan with parchment paper, overlapping sides for easy removal.

2. In a medium bowl, combine flour and baking soda.

3. In a large bowl, using an electric mixer, beat butter and sugars until just combined. Add eggs and vanilla and mix until smooth. Add flour and baking soda and mix on low, until dough is formed. Stir in half of chocolate (150 g).

4. Bring caramel flavoured sauce to a boil over medium heat in a medium saucepan. Stir constantly, cook 5 minutes. Remove from heat.

5. Divide dough in half. Press half into prepared pan. Spread thickened caramel flavoured sauce over dough. Sprinkle with 1/2 tsp (2 ml) sea salt. Drop remaining dough over caramel flavoured sauce and spread until covered.

6. Bake 25-30 minutes or until light golden brown. Melt reserved chocolate (150 g) and pour evenly on top of bars. Sprinkle with remaining 1/2 tsp (2 ml) sea salt. Let cool. Cut into squares.
NEWS CANADA/ ROBINHOOD.CA

Ingredients

- 2 cups (500 ml) all-purpose flour
- 1/2 tsp (2 ml) baking soda
- 3/4 cup (175 ml) butter, melted
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) brown sugar, packed
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) granulated sugar
- 2 eggs
- 2 tsp (10 ml) pure vanilla extract
- 10 oz (300 g) chopped swiss milk chocolate, divided
- 1 can (300 ml) dulce de leche caramel flavoured sauce
- 1 tsp (5 ml) sea salt, divided

Cookie Dough Truffles. A delicious twist on tradition

1. Line baking sheets with parchment paper. Then, in a large bowl, cream butter and sugar together using an electric mixer until the mixture is light and fluffy, for about 1-2 minutes. Stir in the vanilla and then mix in the graham cracker crumbs, oats and salt. Once it's all combined, add in the sweetened condensed milk, mixing well. Lastly, stir in the chocolate chips

2. Freeze dough 30 minutes, or until firm. When ready, roll the dough into 1-inch (2.5 cm) balls and freeze 30 minutes, or until firm.

3. Dip cookie dough balls into melted chocolate to cover, allowing excess chocolate to drip off. Return to baking sheet and chill in refrigerator or freezer until set. Serve cold. NEWS CANADA/ ROBINHOOD.CA

Ingredients

- 1/2 cup (125 ml) butter, softened
- 3/5 cup (175 ml) brown sugar, packed
- 1 tsp (5 ml) pure vanilla extract
- 1 1/4 cups (300 ml) graham cracker crumbs
- 1 1/2 cups (375 ml) oats
- 1/4 tsp (1 ml) salt
- 1 can (300 ml) sweetened condensed milk
- 1 cup (250 ml) semi-sweet chocolate chips
- 1 1/2 lbs (680 g) milk, white or dark chocolate, melted

Black Friday madness may cost you your sanity: Is it worth all the hype?

Shop till you drop. Each year, more Canadians join the melee and flock to the States for the shopping extravaganza, and this time round The Bay, amazon.ca, Gap and Toys R Us will join in north of the border

life@metronews.ca

Do you want to shop in this? Black Friday is one of the busiest shopping days in the U.S. and it's getting more popular in Canada with major retail stores joining in and offering bargains. GETTY IMAGES

Stampedes. Pepper-spray attacks on fellow shoppers. Store employees trampled, crushed and even killed.

Accounts of mall mayhem on Black Friday — the day after Thanksgiving in the U.S., when merchants offer deep discounts on everything from skis to sandwich grills — have become part of retail lore. And although such incidents are rare, midnight store openings, across-the-parking-lot lineups and unbelievable deals have become as iconic of American Thanksgiving as pumpkin pie and pilgrim outfits.

Each year, more Canadians join the Black Friday fray — the moniker reflects the fact that it puts retailers "in the black" for the year. Statistics Canada says 4.2 million Canadians travelled to the U.S. last November, presumably to shop. This year, stores in Canada, including The Bay, amazon.ca, Gap and Toys R Us are all trumpeting Black Friday specials.

Still, Sally Ritchie, vice president of communications and marketing for the Retail Council of Canada says Canadians aren't entranced with cross-border door-busting. "Our polling data shows that only six per cent of people in British Columbia and five per cent of Ontarians plan to travel to the U.S. for Black Friday," Ritchie says; 94 per cent of Canadians will be staying put.

So for most Canadians, it seems, the question isn't, "Where does the line start?," but, "What the heck?"

Well, obviously, there are the deals. "It can be thrilling to get a key item for a really good price," says Sarah Kutulakos, an American now living in Canada. "And there's the social aspect, the ritual. You have Thanksgiving dinner with family and friends, then you all get up early on Friday to go shopping." (Note: Kutulakos admits she doesn't go in for lining up herself.)

But more subtle psychology may be at work as well. Aparna Labroo, a consumer psychologist and the Patricia C. Ellison Professor of Marketing at the Rotman School of Management, University of Toronto, points out that people want things more when they appear scarce. Deep discounts, offering those savings for a limited time and making only a few of those products available (to, say, the first 100 customers) are all ways retailers "manipulate scarcity cues" — in other words, motivate consumers.

Enough to pitch a tent in an overnight lineup? Maybe. "People actually infer value (of a product) from the effort they put into getting that product," says Labroo.

In other words, having to line up is — for some shoppers — not only not a deterrent, it's proof that what they want is worth lining up for. "The many people present, all waiting, can heighten the sense of scarcity."

And, apparently, the need for a $38 Blu-ray player.

Black Friday facts

- Camping out. Last year, a couple in Florida camped out on the sidewalk in front of a Best Buy for 12 days in order to be the first in line for Black Friday sales.
- Buy Nothing Day. Twenty years ago, Buy Nothing Day was created as an anti-consumerism alternative to Black Friday.
- Holiday cheer? Ninety per cent of Black Friday shoppers will be buying goods for themselves.
- Online. Sixteen per cent of Canadians will buy goods online from U.S. retailers on Black Friday.
- Cyber Monday. The term has become an international marketing term used by online retailers in the U.K., Portugal, Germany and Chile.
- Turnout. The National Retail Federation anticipates 134 million people will hit the stores this Thanksgiving weekend.

Decided to risk a Black Friday spree? Stay safe out there!

The Black Friday shopper's emergency first-aid kit

- Rolls of gauze. Extremely compact and light, yet strong enough to tie your trunk down, or a 42-inch television to the top of your car.
- Adhesive bandages. For credit-card blisters or paper cuts from coupons and flyers.
- Finger splints. Entering your debit-card PIN repeatedly can cause carpal tunnel syndrome.
- Caffeine pills. Sure, there might be a Tim's close enough for an emergency run, but do you really want to risk your place in line?
- Acetaminophen. Even if you're not headache-prone, loudspeaker announcements and other shoppers yelling at their kids/into their phones/at line-cutters can take a toll.
- Scotch in a hip flask. In case all else fails.

Want the deals without the lines? Cyber Monday is a stressless alternative. And with a smartphone, you don't need to be at a computer, or even at home, you can do your shopping on your morning commute. A few great apps:

- Black Friday Shopping (blackfriday.com, free): Get breaking Black-Friday ads, link directly to 1,200 top retailers and get cash-back coupons
- My Christmas List (99 cents): Plan gifts for everybody on your list; set and stick to a budget; keep track of spending; compare prices and share your lists
- Price Check Guru (free): Enter any item to find the lowest online price and connect directly to that retailer to buy
- PayPal (free): Get pay for your purchases immediately without having to enter your credit card info every time.

If you want to get out there and shop till you drop, best that you get the lowdown on survival. GETTY IMAGES

VALLEY FORD HAS THE PERSONAL TOUCH

Feel like a member of the family when you walk into Valley Ford.

Located just outside of Saskatoon on Highway 11, Valley Ford gives you country hospitality every time you walk through their door.

"We provide a personal touch to all customer interactions so you leave feeling like more than just a customer to us," says Kevin Adams, general manager of Valley Ford.

"The difference is our philosophy and our people."

Valley Ford was recognized with the President's Diamond Award for outstanding service in 2011.

"Service is one area, among others, that we definitely excel at," Adams says.

"Customers are very happy with the service that we provide."

One customer had this to say about their experience at Valley Ford.

"Valley Ford in Hague was the single best experience I've ever had in purchasing a vehicle. The entire experience felt like having an adviser who was there to help answer questions, and fit you into the right vehicle. I was so floored by the end-to-end experience there that I could only reward that type of experience by giving them my business," Shawn D says.

While the faces might not change when you walk through the doors, expect a new look from Valley Ford in 2013. Valley Ford will be expanding to create an even better dealership experience for its customers.

"It is good for people to know we are growing," Adams says.

SASKATOON'S HIDDEN GEM: BACK THEN & AGAIN

As unique as the jewelry it sells, Back Then & Again Jewellery Boutique is a hidden gem of Saskatoon.

Specializing in antique and vintage jewelry, Back Then & Again offers customers the chance to revisit the past while shopping for jewelry from all eras.

"It is like going through a jewelry museum," says Sherry Neufeld, owner of Back Then & Again Jewellery Boutique.

"It is very much a destination store."

Customers are transported to an upscale luxury boutique when they walk through the doors.

"The moment you walk into the store, it is comfortable, but at the same time, it is fun," Neufeld says.

"It is an experience to come to the store and it takes time."

With jewelry that ranges from special occasions to the everyday, browse pieces from any era, with pieces as old as the late 1800s until the present.

"We have pieces from different eras in our display cases and I find different age groups are attracted to different eras," Neufeld says.

There is even something for the men at Back Then & Again. Neufeld says the store carries men's costume jewelry as well, but it is more rare to get as men tend to wear out what they have.

She does add that they have a good selection of cufflinks and tie clips and is always on the look out for more pieces.

Find the perfect piece for yourself or a loved one at Back Then & Again, located at 115 3rd Ave. S., in the Drinkle Building's lower mall, or on Facebook.

SET YOURSELF APART AT FLASHBACK CLOTHING

Dazzle your friends and co-workers this holiday season by showing up to the next party in something authentically vintage.

At Flashback Clothing Collective, browse through authentic vintage clothing ranging from the 1930s to the 1990s.

"Everything is one-of-a-kind, it is not canned fashion," says Shanon Bowers, owner of Flashback.

With the holiday party season approaching, Bowers says it's easy to set yourself apart with a holiday outfit that will be unique to you when you shop at her store.

"We have a great line of holiday dresses available right now," Bowers says.

Sizes range from zero to size 12, but larger sizes are available in some items.

At Flashback, it's like stepping into someone's closet and seeing all the old fashions that you loved.

Customers from across Canada shop at Flashback, and Bowers is regularly shipping out items to places such as Montreal, Vancouver and Toronto.

"To get a feel for the store and to see the amazing selection of vintage clothing available, you really need to come in and have a look," Bowers says.

DONATIONS AID THE COMMUNITY

SALVATION ARMY NEEDS YOUR HELP

For the past 130 years, the Salvation Army has been working towards meeting human needs and being a transforming influence in the communities of the world.

But it cannot do this without your help.

"There is currently an urgent need for clothing donations at the Salvation Army Thrift Store locations in Western Canada," says Scott Gilmore, spokesperson for the Salvation Army.

"Thrift Stores throughout the region are only able to function because of donations of new or gently-used clothing and housewares."

Your donations of gently-used items to the Salvation Army Thrift Stores is designed to be a win-win, providing needed items for the community at a nominal fee, while generating proceeds for Salvation Army programs.

In 2011-12, Canadians contributed more than $900,000 in vouchers for individuals and families in need to redeem for clothing and other items in a Salvation Army Thrift Store, and close to $3 million that supported Salvation Army programs and services including emergency relief and shelters for men, women and the homeless, community, family and single-parent support, work readiness and many more.

With the largest pick-up and distribution system for a non-profit organization in Canada, the National Recycling Operations arm of the Salvation Army is breaking new ground in ways that not only provides a meaningful way for families and communities to support the good work of the Salvation Army, but also has many other benefits.

Gently-used items that are donated to the Salvation Army divert that product from going to the landfill.

There are cost savings to retailers who might otherwise be paying to lawfully dispose of damaged and defective products from their home.

And Thrift Stores give local businesses an opportunity to give back to the community, along with obtaining a tax receipt for their charitable donation.

The program called "Recycle for Good" is modelled for businesses to combine the philanthropic and environmental objectives of retailers simultaneously.

"By working together with retailers who know the benefits of building a strong community, we are excited about the possibilities that 'Recycle for Good' can bring to all who share in this endeavor," Gilmore says. "With your help, we continue to raise the bar with a relentless and unwavering commitment to the cause."

NHLPA submits offer but sides 'still far apart'

Lockout. Union moves toward league in revenue sharing as talks resume in New York

The NHL and NHL Players' Association finally seem to be speaking the same language, but they still have a gap to bridge in negotiations on a collective bargaining agreement.

The union tabled a comprehensive proposal Wednesday that generated a tepid response from the NHL. However, commissioner Gary Bettman acknowledged the six-page offer was a step in the right direction and the document appeared to offer a path forward in talks, with the sides now envisioning the same type of economic system.

"There was some movement in our direction and it was appreciated," said Bettman. "We're still far apart. But hopefully there's some momentum so we can bring this to a conclusion."

The union proposed a 50-50 split of revenues during the five-year deal along with $393 million US in deferred make-whole payments throughout. Two weeks ago, the league offered $211 million and a 50-50 split.

NHLPA executive director Donald Fehr acknowledged that his constituents are anxious to end the lockout and indicated that the new offer is "about as good" as the players are willing to make.

"(The players) are suffering right along with the fans," said Fehr. "We made an enormous move in the owners' direction to try and end it — at least as of today that hasn't been successful."

Until now, the union had been pushing for a system that would see players paid a fixed amount of revenue each season rather than receiving a percentage of it. However, the new offer included some safeguards to ensure they'd be protected in the event league revenues stalled, including a clause that states the players' share can't drop from year to year. Yet to be resolved

Contracts could still be sticking point

There is also ground to cover on contract issues.

The NHLPA offer included a rule that would punish teams who sign players to long-term, back-diving contracts — something the league has identified as an important issue. It also called for players making more than $1 million US in the minors to have their salary count against the cap.

The union chose not to adopt the NHL's proposed changes to unrestricted free agency, entry-level deals and salary arbitration.

Argos coach doesn't want players to score ... until game day

Scott Milanovich wants the Toronto Argonauts to control their libido during Grey Cup week.

The Argos rookie head coach says he doesn't want his players scoring off the field prior to the big game. Toronto takes on the Calgary Stampeders for the CFL championship Sunday at Rogers Centre.

But he also has a personal reason for taking this approach.

"I have two young daughters at home right now that are probably watching this press conference, so my take on it is going to be 'I believe in abstinence,'" Milanovich said Wednesday, answering what has become the traditional last question of the Grey Cup coaches' news conference.

Skiing. Alpine Canada looking for ways to include Vonn in men's race

The president of Alpine Canada hasn't given up on Lindsey Vonn racing men at Lake Louise, Alta.

The first time might not be in a World Cup race, though.

Max Gartner says he's been talking to Vonn's sponsor Red Bull.

"We're working on some plans, but we do hope this will happen down the road," Gartner said. "We do hope it will happen in Lake Louise.

Vonn asked FIS, the world governing body of skiing, if she could race in the men's World Cup downhill and super-G this weekend at Lake Louise. The reigning Olympic champion has 11 World Cup victories and 17 podiums in total.

Love not the answer as Wolves fall to Nuggets

Andre Iguodala had 18 points and nine rebounds to spoil Kevin Love's surprise season debut in the Denver Nuggets' 101-94 victory over the Minnesota Timberwolves on Wednesday night.

Danilo Gallinari scored 19 points for the Nuggets, who withstood a furious start by the Timberwolves.

Love scored 34 points and grabbed 14 rebounds, helping the Wolves take a 17-point lead in the first half.

MLB. Buehrle gets in two cents on way out of Miami

Mark Buehrle issued a parting shot at Miami Marlins management after his stay with the team lasted only one tumultuous season.

The left-hander, who signed a four-year contract a year ago, was part of the blockbuster trade that also sent all-star shortstop Jose Reyes, right-hander Josh Johnson and two other players to the Toronto Blue Jays. With the deal, the Marlins pared $146.5 million US in future payroll.

"I'm upset with how things turned out in Miami," Buehrle said in a statement issued Wednesday through his agent, Jeff Berry. "But I'm putting it behind me and looking forward to moving on with my career."

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
Flattery will come easily to you today but you must use it with care. Your way with words may be able to win others over to your side but do you really want everyone knowing what you are up to? Think about it.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
If you need to connect with someone you have drifted apart from recently, now is the time to make your move. Don't wait for them to approach you, pick up the phone or knock on their door and say "Hi!"

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
You have been worrying for no good reason and what takes place over the next few days will remind you just how fortunate you truly are. Once your mind is in a better place, your physical health will improve as well.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Use your imagination and follow your dream, wherever it might lead. Some people may say you have taken leave of your senses, but more likely the opposite is true: You have at last found your true calling.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
The Sun in Sagittarius gives you bags of self-confidence and you must use it today to help a loved one or friend get over some kind of loss or trauma. The best way to do that is to make them laugh.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Don't try to keep your feelings to yourself. Let the whole world know why you are so full of love and laughter. Most likely it's because you have finally realized that life is supposed to be enjoyed, not dreaded.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
There is someone in your life you need to pay a lot more attention to. You know who this someone is and you know it is your responsibility to reach out to them. So what are you waiting for? Do it now.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
The Sun may have moved out of your birth sign but today Venus, planet of emotional and material values, moves in, which is not a bad swap. Who and what do you truly value? Make sure you don't lose them.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
You feel good about yourself now but how do you feel about other people? You may have reason to believe that certain individuals don't deserve your friendship, but why make an issue of it? Forgive, forget and move on.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Give your mind and your body a rest today, and let others do the heavy lifting for a change. Friendships are under excellent stars now, so why not have fun with your friends? Laughter is always the best medicine.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Someone will ask you for advice today and you will be happy to give it, but do they really want to know the truth? If what you have to tell them is not what they want to hear, it could cause a falling out.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Steer clear of subjects and situations that could lead to conflict. That is especially important on the work front where, if you speak your mind, you could make a powerful enemy. Not everyone wants to hear the truth. SALLY BROMPTON
